

Dimitrios Poulis SV

Dimitris have been a registered Nurse since 1995 and for more than 20 years works in Perioperative environment. Initially worked on the Cardiothoracic surgical world at Onassis Cardiac Surgical Center (OCSC). Since 2009 is board member of Greece Operating Room Nurses Association (GORNA), and Greek representative in European Operating Room Nurses Association (EORNA).

In 2005 received his Bachelor in Psychology.

Recent research activity includes, the quality of life of patients after Cardiac Surgery, Burnout syndrome in health care, Bullying in OR and job satisfaction. In 2003 received the award for best research in National Perioperative Congress and his study about the relation of stress factors in OR and job satisfaction, and 2007 the award from Hellenic Cardiac Nursing Association for a retrospective study in 1400 patients and the factors which involve the postoperative mortality after a cardiac surgery and smoking paradox.

Last six years is chief editor in on line journal 'Perioperative Nursing', spnj.gr.